ACCOMPANYING THE PRESIDENT'S COMMUNICATION

> CONGRESS, Of the 8th December, 1604.

Extract of a letter from the Secretary of States to William Eaton Efg. Conful of the United States at Tunis, da-

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, Washington, May 20, 1801. by the bashaw of Tripoli, of hostile defigns against the United States, have, as you will learn from commodore Dale, determined the President to send into the Mediterraneau a foundron of three frigates and a floop of war, under the command of that officer. Should war have been declared, or hostilities commenced, this force will be immediately employed in the detence and protection of our commerce against the piracies of that regency. It is hoped that the contagion will not have spread to Tunis or Algiers; but should one or both of them have followed the perfiduous example, their cotfairs will be equally repelled and punished,

"The policy of exhibiting a naval force on the coast of Barbary, has long been urged by yourself and the other con. fuls. The prefent moment is peculiar. ly favorable for the experiment, not only as it is a provision against an immediate danger, but as we are now at peace and amity with all the rest of the world, and as the force employed would, if at home, be at nearly the same expense, with less advantage to our mariners. The Prefident has therefore every reason to expect the utmost exertions of your prudence and address, in giving the measure an impression most advantageous to the character and interests of the United States. In effecting this object, the means must be left in a great degree to your knowledge of the local and other cir. cumfances, which cannot be understood at this diffance. You will of course take due pains to fatisty the Bey, that the United States are defirous of maintaining Ive in beace, that they have given abundant evidence of their disposition to cul tivate the friendship of the Barbary regencies and of himfelf in particular, and that if the flag of the United States should be engaged in war with either of them, it will be a war of defence and necessity not of choice or provocation. You will alfo give every friendly explanation an affurance on this occasion, which may be requisite tor the confuls and agents of other powers reliding at Tunis.

"You are authorized to inform the ey of Tunis, that a veffel is ing to take in the cargo, which will coinplate the regalia due to him, and that no time will be loft in getting her on her voyage,

NOTE.

The fame was written to Mr. O' Brien' ex cept the last paragraph, with the following addition :-

" You will of course take due pains to fatisfy the Dey, that the United States are defirous of maintaining peace with all nations who are willing to live in peace that they have given abundant evidence of their disposition to cultivate the friend. fhip of the Barbary regencies, and of himself in particular; that they expect from his good faith an efficacious interposition, according to our treaty with him for guaranteeing the treaty with the bathaw of Tripoli.

" The United States, it appears, will before you receive this, be three years in arrears to the Dey. Towards making up the Deficiency of the "George Wash ington" is under active preparation to car ry timber and other flores for at least on aunuity. Commodore Dale is charged with thirty thousand dollars, which the Prefident hopes the Dey may have been induced to accept as a commutation for the dores due for another. He has alfo in charge four hundred yards of cloth, and thirty pieces of linen, for the bienni. al present. Should you not have prevailed on the Dey, and thould find it ftill im. possible to prevail on him to accept the thirty thousand dollars in lieu of the flores, without the application of four, five, or fix thousand dollars, you will b fup hed with the fam, and the fum o thirty thousand dollars will then be mad up out of other monies in the commo dore's hands. Should there be ro poffi by the commodore. The balance for the if it be offered," remaining, or third year, will be fent & foon as it can be done, either in stores or money as may be agreed. You are alread aware how much both the convenien and interest of the United States will be promoted by fabilitating money for flores rating the latter at thirty thouland dollars as a permanent regulation, and will take You may find it perhaps an argument of fome weight with the Dey for preferring money to flores, that the former can al ways be remitted with more punctuality; and that in times of war fuch of the latter as are held to be contraband by the European law of nations, may be expoled to captures, by which he must be affected as well as the U. States. In case you flould focceed in the pecuniary commutation proposed, it will be proper in defining the fum of thirty thousand dollars to refer to fome standard of weight and fine. nels in the metal, will fecure the United States against arbitrary regulations of the Dey, and quiet his jealoufy if he should have any, of imposition on the part of the United States. The Spanish dollars now in circulation may, for example, answer this purpofe.

" The pretentions fet up against the United States in the case of the ship Fortune, for indemnification to the owners of the merchandize, with which the was laden, thews the difadvantage of employed ing our vetfels in the freight of Algerine property. You will, therefore, as far as our feamen in nautical duties. We reyou can, discourage that branch of trade; and as far as it cannot be done, will take care to reprefs all expectation or claim whatsoever, to throw on the United States the loffes by capture under their

" One subject of equal importance and delicacy still remains. The fending to Configurational frip of war, the George Walhington, by torce, under the Algerine flag, and for fuch a purpose, has deeply affected the fentibility, not only of the President, but of the people of the United States. Whatever t.m. porary effects it may have had favorable ferious a nature, that it is not impelible that it may be deemed necessary, on a fit occasion, to retrieve the subject. Viewing it in this light, the Prefident wifnes sothing may be faid or done by youl that may unnecessarily preclude the competent authority from animadverting on that transaction in any way that a vindication of the national honor may be thought to Washington, May 21, 1801. "The threat of hostilities against the trade of the United States by the Bashaw, certified in your communication, and issuing immediately from the Bashaw himfelf in a transflation of his letter of 25 May laft, certified by his enterpret re Far-fara, has determined the president to seno into the Mediterranean a fquadron of frigates and a floop of war, under commodore Dale, by whom this is written. You will also receive from him a letter to the Bashaw from the president.

" Should war have been declared, or hostillities commenced, before the arrival of this fquadron, it will be immediately employed in the defence and protection of our commerce, against the piratical attacks of the Bathaw's corfairs. Should war have been neither declared nor com menced, it is expelled by the Prefident that you will exert all your prudence and address in rendering the appearance of the fquadron, and the letter from the President subservient to the preservation ot peace, and to fuch impressions on the Bathaw, as will be the most favourable to the dignity and interests of the United States. The Prefident relies the more on the zeal and fuccels of these exertions, as the policy of exhibiting a sava. force on the coast of Barbary, has long been urged by you and the other Con fuls. To aid your exertions on this occation, you will be supplied by commo-dore Dale, with a form if necessary which will be communicated by him. In a letter which I have written by the present opportunity to Mr. O'Brien, he is instruct ed to cultivate the good will of the Dey of Algier's, and to call on him for his stipulated interpolition as gnarantee of bility of inducing the Dey to the mea the treaty between the United States, and the centre of the great square. > s Jefferson, President of the United ares of America. To the illuttrious d honored Bey of Tripoli of Barbary, whom God preferve.

GREAT AND RESPECTED FRIEND, "The affurances of friendship which our confid has given you, and or our fincere defire to cultivate peace and commerce with your fabjeers, are faithful expreffions of our dispositions, and you will continue to find proofs of them in all thefe acts of respect and friendly intercourfe which are due between nations flanding as we do in the relations of peace and amity with each other.

" At the conclusion of our treaty with you, we endeavoured to prove our respect for yourfelf, and fatisfaction at that event by fuch demonstration as then gave you entire content : and we are disposed to believe that in rendering into another langrage those expressions in your letter of the 25th of May latt, which feem to imly purposes inconsistent with the faith of that transaction, your intentions have been misconstrued. On this supposition we renew to you fincerely, affurances of ur conftant friendship, and that our defife to cultivare peace and commerce with you, remains firm and unabated.

" We have found it expedient to detach a foundron of observation into the Mediterranean fea, to superintend the fafety of our commerce there, and to exercise commend them to your hospitallity and good offices, should occasior, require their forting to your harbours. We hope heir appearance will give umbrage to o power, for, while we mean to reft he fafety of our commerce on the re fources of our own ftrength and bravery every fea, we have pet given to this quadron in first command, to conduct themselves towards all frendy pow rs with the most perfect respect and good order: it being the first object of our foicitude to cherish peace and friendship with all nations with whom it can be held on terms of equality and reciprocity.

FROM THE PALLADIUM.

MORPHEUS.

Meffrs. Printers, ON my third vifit to the Land of Nod, I found Angelo as if waiting for me, near tion, was just going out upon a new en-terprize. From his first lecture had been pretry extentively imbified the doctrine, that property ought to be common, and the refute of labour, which thould also be common. This doctrine was to a num. per of his people altogether a popular one. Encouraged by the reception with which met, the Philotopher had propoted, on this day, to go out into a common field with feveral teams and just ruments of huf. bandry, to plough the field according, to the new lyttem of philanthropy. All very to labour ailke, and all were to be led alike with the produce of the labour .-We immediately joined the company, who were just entering the field, which lay in the fuburbs of the City of Perfectability. The field was covered with given fwant. A few ft imps of trees, and not a finell ts furface. The Philosopher, himself, to set the example, took hold of one of the ploughs. and directed the plough-boy to drive the team onward. A he had never plough. ed any thing before, except metaphyfical fields, which he had always taken care to have smoothed and mellowed to his like ing; plain farmer's ploughing in rough ground must be supposed to have been sta tended with feveral inconveniencies, not the less disagreeable because they were of confiderable fize, were feattered over

The first difficulty which the philosopher met with was, that he could not keep the colter in the ground. All his efforts (skill he had none) did not suffice. The oxen drew the plough out as fast as he put it in. As his temper was meek in appearance rather than reality, he began foon to complain of the plough boy, the team, and the plough, and roundly pronounced them good for nothing. The farmers, who accompanied from a curiofity to fee a learned man plough, laughed and jefted as he went on, and contributed very little to the restoration of his good humour.

The Philosopher was arefled, according to his dignity, in a robe, long and flowing. One of the plongh handles caught his robe, and made a large rent in it. Plague on the plough! (exclaimed the

You ought to fay plague on the ploughman (replied one of the farmers.) The plough is mine, and as good a one as ever turned a furrow.

I can do nothing with it (answered the Philosopher.) That is because you don't know how (faid the farmer.) You men of learning think, because you have read a few books, that you know every thing; and that we farmers, because we have not read them, know nothing. But was directed to write to the Der of Al- I fee you know as little of our business as we do of yours. Give me the plough. You will fee I can make it keep the inrow. No, my friend (faid the Philofofrom of observation, dispatched by the pier, with a look of binignity) I will president of the United States into the mish the furrow which I have begun,

Very well (aniwered the farmer) as you by the Bashaw of Tripoli, and to exerplease for that. Just then the plough, cife our feamen in nautical duty, the having struck against a root of one of the nstructions which I have received from flumps, which stood at a small distance from its course, fluck, fast. The team stopped. The plough-boy hallowed, Whoh, Whoh, then! The Philosopher, recovering himfelf from a violent twitch, which the motion of the plough had given him, ordered the boy to back the ream; and with a hard pull lugged the plough over States the talk of explaining more partil the root. The team went on, making fometimes a breach in the fward, and fomesimes fliding over it.

We should make fad work of getting a living (faid one of the farmers) if we ploughed our land in this manner. That we thould (replied another) and was going on; when the plough, firiking a large from, bounded violently against the Phitofopher's thin, and knocked him down.

The Philosopher grouned.

I told you (faid the farmer who owned the team) you'd better give me the plough.
The Philosopher grouned again; and feveral of the farmers, pitving his mistortone, raifed him up.

I never faw the like (cried the Philosopher piteoully.) I have a thousand times (faid a wag,

Alexandria Advertiser.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 29.

We are authorised to flate, that no offcial information has been received by Go. vernment relative to a boat belonging to the frigate Prefident, commodore Dale, having uplet.

It is a circumstance highly gratifying to Republicans, and honorable to the country, that the Democrats in congress, at least their leaders, difcover fafficient honor & integrity to difavow the bale and infamous charges which their hollow-hearted minions have been in the habit of advancing against the most distinguished characters of the late administration. Men who plander Post-offices, and publish private letters, had before plundered the office of the Treasury, and from books which were there found published what they called demontratices, that Pickering and Wol-COTT had defrauded the United States of hundreds of thousands of Dollars for which no account had been rendered. Many honest people were weak enough to believe these charges. The public ought now to notice the estimation in which these weetches are held by men of character in their own party, who fo far from giving the least credit to their wicked falfehoods, openly declare in Congress, that they do not even suspett Mr. Pickering of ever having appropriated a fingle dollar of the public money to his own ofe; that they confider Mr. Pickering as a man of the most irreproachable integrity. A committee, appointed during the last session, in which were three very diftinguished democrats, unanimously pronounced as flattering an eulogium upon the talents industry and integrity manifested in the official condue of Mr. Wolcot. Where will those creatures now hide their heads, who have been amuting the credulous populace with promifes, that the new administration & a democratic Congress would attest the truth of their libellous affertions, and bring to light fuch frauds and defalcati. ons as would fully justify all the scanda. tion? What then, it will be asked, is the object of inflituting an inquiry into the accounts of the late administration ?-This questi a deserves an answer, and the answer will involve some principles advanced by the prefident, in his message, and advocated by the Democrats in congress, which merit very ferious confideration, and which are culculated to alarm the apprehensions of those who with well to the Constitution and prefent form of our go.

The Prefident, in his Meffage, fuggefts to Congress the expediency of multiplying barriers (we use the President's own language) against the diffipation of the pub. lic contributions, by appropriating frecific Jums to every specific purpose, and by difallowing all applications of money warying from the appropriation in of ject or tranfcending it in amount.

The object of the democratic members now is to enquire whether Mr. Pickering and the other members of the administrarion, have ever varied from the principle which is here fuggefted as the only proper rule for the regulation of the fe who direct the application of public money to enquire not whether Mr. Pickering has ever pplied money which had never been apropriated by law; for that is not even pretended or infinuated, indeed, the very contrary is declared by Mr. Nicholfon; but whether he has ever made applications not see ... Gaz. United States. f money varying from the appropriation in object or transcending it in amount. The Republican Members acknowledge hat he has, and that fuch has, from necel, ity, been the practice ever fince the go. vernment was brought into operation; and it is fincerely to be hoped that Conress will not be so visionary and unwife, as to impose upon the present, or upon any uture heads of departments, their reffricions here recommended by the Prefident. In making the experiment, they would for be brought to justice. provisions, in croffing the Sulquehanna are overfet and loft : or the money is put into the hands of an agent who proves un-faithful, or, through misfortune, fails and the money is loft :- or the provisions are procured and fall into the hands of the Indians : according to the doctrine, this garrifon must be cloathed at the expence of a thousand dollars; but must have nothing to eat till Congress again meet, make the necessary appropriations, and time be allowed, after this, for the feeretary to procure the provisions and have them forwarded to the spot. During all this time the Secretary may have in his hands a furplus of a thousand dollars which had been appropriated to the building of thips, or to defray the expence of the civil lift, or for some other purpose, and which, according to the former ulages of the government, might with propriety, be applied to fave the lives of the garrifon, and an account be rendered accordingly.

If any farther illustration be necessary, let the mafter of a family, preparing for a voyage to Europe, call upon his fleward: let him deliver just as much money as he may reasonably suppose sufficient for the expenses of the household till his, return: let him distribute the whole into parcels marking upon each the fpecific purpose to which it shall be applied, one for coffee, another for ducks, another for wine, another for beef, and fo on to fifn, butter, molasses, pork, mustard and mush : Let him then inform the fleward, that whatever changes may take place in the prices of provisions; whatever accidents may happen to a part of the money; that though he should be compelled to provide only pork and molasses for want of sufficient appropriations for beef and bread, he must still confine his application of money to the specific purpole, without varying from the appro-priation in object or transcending it in a-mount, upon pain of difficultion and sixgrace. Such a man would act upon the principle recommended in the medage and now contended for by the democrats, in the houle of representatives. Let any man, accustomed to provide for a family, fay whether fuch a scheme would be pracit in the affairs of a nation. Any person, who reflects for a moment, will perceive how impossible it is for Congress to foresee all the contingencies which may happen to render it indispensibly neceffary that the applications of money thould differ, in some respects from the ratio contemplated at the time of making the appropriation; the the aggregate a. mount may not vary at all. No meafore could be fallen upon to provide for the neceffary exigencies of government, and at the fame time to confine the public officers to an application of specific sums to every specific purpose, but by appropriating a vastly greater sum than would be necessary, in case no accident should happen, and thus taking from labor, on unreasonable portion of its earnings, and allowing it to be use. less in the pockets of public officers. On from the prefent mode of conducting the business, provided the officers be men of ability and integrity, If they are suspect-ed to be otherwise, the President has power to difmis them and to appoint others. Is is not pretended that the public interest has faffered from any one who has hitherto been intrufted with thefe discretionary powers, exteept from Randolph, the democrat.-It must, however, be confessed, that, till now, the experiment has never been made upon any other than Americans.

" FROM THE EDITOR." w Washington City, December 7, 1801. " The President speaks in his freich very animatedly on the naturalization law and on the judiciary -and on the mie litia laws and juries:

It may be proper further to flate, that on the respective days open which those letters became due, I received blank sheets of paper, sealed in the form of letters, directed to me and stamped with the Wash ington post-mark; the first with the mark Dec. 7, the fecond Dec. 8. These were both fent back to the Pos-Mafter in this city and the postage was refunded. The probability is, that, when the letters of Mr. Peres were folen, these blank theets were dropped to their places, in order that the theft might escape not
